Origin: Coco Cavalli's sire, Cheenook

(deceased) by Caretino, completed his stallion performance test in Medigen in 1991 as a performance-class 1 stallion, 3rd in his age group. He has participated in the Federal German Dressage Championship and was trained to the Grand Prix level. His progeny are highly successful in both competition Dressage and Jumping. His daughter, Cyrenaika, won the Hanoverian Show Jumping Championships and the 6-year-old Federal Championships. Another daughter, Cindy Crawford, won 2nd place and became vice champion in the 6-year-old Federal Championships and continued on to become an international show jumper for Piet Raymakers of Holland.

Performance Record: Coco Cavalli is one of only 2 approved sons of Cheenook and is equally talented in both dressage and jumping. In Germany, as a very young competition horse, he won classes in both disciplines. Since emigrating to the US has won dressage classes with scores to the mid 73% at PrixSt. Georges in his first year at this level. Currently, Coco is successfully competing at Intermediate 1 and now getting ready to enter the Grand Prix of Dressage for the season of 2007. The grey 10 year old Oldenburg stallion has 3 brilliant gaits with enormous expression and to quote Robert Dover of the US Equestrian Team, "Coco shows wonderful talent for the passage and piaff tour and you will see that he is a very interesting horse to watch for in future competition." Coco Cavalli was second in the breed show for stallions under saddle in his first time at Devon. His conformation is without peer and his temperament and character in trainability and concentration are not to be surpassed. His kindness, forwardness and lightness in hand, combined with a huge desire to please and extraordinary, expressive gaits make him one of the most sought after stallions available. He is extremely comfortable to sit with a big flowing soft swing and wonderful self carriage. He is also very easy to ride.

Breeding/Progeny Record: Coco Cavalli's first foals arrive in 2005
